The Mobile Riot.

Our dispatches yesterday furnish the particulars of a desperate riot at Mobile. This will of course be made the pretext for a general Radical howl. The fact that an insolent Radical speaker succeeded in exasperating the hot-headed portion of the people beyond endurance, will be accepted as evidence throughout the North that the South is still rebellious and that stringent measures are necessary to crush out the spirit of the people. For this reason it is extremely unfortunate that the difficulty occurred. The Southern people, though subjugated and submissive, are still sensitive to insult, and know how to resent outrage, and when a man from the North presumes upon their weakness, and tells them that they are bound to remain quiet under their taunts, because he has a regiment of Federal troops at his back, they will be very apt to exhibit some of that spirit which carried them through four years of the most terrific warfare known to modern times. It is often dangerous to trample even upon a worm, for it may turn and sting, and the Southern people are not yet so humiliated that they will listen patiently to the insolence of Northern bragadoos. Like all other people, they will sometimes find in such cases as this, forbearance is not a virtue, and then they will, in the teeth of consequences, assert their manhood.

The speeches of such men as Wilson and Kelly are outrages upon and insults to the Southern people, and they would be more or less than human if they could listen to them without feelings of resentment. The mob at Mobile is but the beginning of what we shall see if these peddlers of political doctrines and Jacobin insolence do not abandon their pilgrimages through the Southern States, for while that people are sincere in their desire to restore the Union and are earnest in their professions of loyalty, they have not yet been reduced to the point which deprives them of the disposition to chastise insolence.—Louisville Courier, 16th.

In the above we are told that if Northern men attempt to address the people of the South on the political issues of the day, they will be chastised for their insolence. We are also told that in thus attacking Northern speakers the Southern people are exhibiting "some of that spirit which carried them through four years of the most terrific warfare known to modern times." Probably it would be well for the Courier and its party to remember that the "spirit" which enabled the Northern people to destroy the armies and government of the Confederacy, still exists and will again manifest itself in the destruction of every relic of the late rebellion should that become necessary to make this a land of freedom. The people of the South must remember that the old days of slavery have passed away, and men can no longer be proscribed or mobbed with safety for discussing public affairs.

Judge Kelly's speech is denounced as being "incendiary." To prove that it was not so, it is only necessary to read his speech delivered at New Orleans. That speech was a clear statement of the causes of the war and a just estimate of its consequences, containing neither taunts, threats or denunciations, and we are assured that his speech at Mobile was characterized by the same candor and consideration.

Incendiary Language—Several Men Shot.

The Memphis Ledger of the 14th, says that incendiary language was used by two of speakers, one of whom was colored, at a Union meeting held at Brownsville the day previous. The Ledger continues:

"The meeting took a recess about noon, and as Carter, the colored speaker, was standing in the street with some of his friends, a white man approached and asked him what he meant by the language he had used. Some words ensued, pistols were drawn and several shots fired, whereby three negroes and two white men were wounded slightly. It is said that the Memphis Radicalism acted nobly on the occasion, retreating to the woods to form a reserve corps. Comment on the above affair is unnecessary, it is but the natural result of the Radicals, who are endeavoring to poison the mind of the negro against the Southern people.

Electrical Conducting Power of Metals.

In procuring a lightning rod it is essential to select the best, and that our readers may understand the relative values of the several kinds in use, we subjoin the following article, from the Scientific American:

The effect of the electrical discharge on metallic bodies is to raise their temperature to a less or greater degree, according to their conducting power. The best conductors are silver and copper; the poorest, lead; as will be seen from the following table:

Heat Evolved. Conducting Power.

Silver 6 120
Copper 6 80
Gold 6 60
Zinc 18 40
Platinum 30 24
Iron 30 24
Tin 36 20
Lead 72 12

The immense sales of illicit liquors in New York and environs during the past few days, have, it is estimated, resulted in a loss to the government of revenue, of not less than $200,000.

The Late Joseph A. Wright.

Ex Governor Joseph A. Wright was a marked example of what we are accustomed to call self-made men. Left an orphan at an early age, with no one to depend upon but himself, he overcame, through the energy which characterized his life, the adverse circumstances surrounding his youth, and rose to a social and political eminence to which few men of Indiana have attained.

After a brief period of instruction at the State University at Bloomington then in its infancy, he commenced the study of law with Craven P. Hester, then one of the leading lawyers of Southern Indiana, and now, we believe, a judge in California, and on his admission to the bar settled at Rockville, Parke county, in the year 1831. He soon acquired a remunerative practice, and was as successful in his profession as in the political arena in which he subsequently figured. He was at one time a member of the legal firm of Kinney, Wright, and Gookins, well and favorably known on the Wabash a quarter of a century ago, the junior member of which was a Supreme Judge, while Wright was Governor. He also enjoyed the benefit of a partnership, for several years, with Tilghman A. Howard, once the leader of the Democratic party of this State, a popular lawyer, and a man universally esteemed for his upright and honorable character.

But it was chiefly as a political leader that Joseph A. Wright was known to the people of Indiana, and of the country at large. In 1848 he was elected to represent the Tipton district in Congress, having previously served one or more terms in the State Legislature, but in 1845 was defeated for a re-election and returned to his profession, which he followed until 1849. In that year he was nominated by the Democratic State Convention for the office of Governor, and was elected by a large majority, the Whig party then being in that state of decadence which culminated in its annihilation a few years later.

The administration of Governor Wright was popular, and he became a great favorite with his party, and gained many friends among his political opponents. In 1852 he was re-elected for a term of four years and served until the expiration of his term, January 1857, when he was succeeded by Governor Willard.

While Governor he was active in encouraging the development of the resources of the State, especially its agricultural interests, and under his auspices the State Agricultural Society was organized and the system of State fairs inaugurated.

On the accession of Mr. Buchanan to the Presidency, Governor Wright was appointed Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States to the Prussian Court, and served in that capacity with honor to himself and the satisfaction of the Administration, until after the inauguration of Mr. Lincoln in 1861.

He was in Berlin when secession and rebellion involved the nation in civil war, and had no hesitation in determining the course which true patriotism demanded. While many of his political friends were questioning the right of the Government to "coerce" rebels to obey the laws, he wrote home a letter, which was widely published, advocating vigorous measures for maintaining the Union and suppressing the rebellion. This, we regret to say, lost him the confidence of the Democratic leaders, and he never afterwards acted with that party. After his return to Indiana he gave his active influence to the support of the war and to the Union party, traveling over the State addressing the people when recruits were needed for the army, and pending elections when the voter of the people were scarcely of less importance than battles in the field.

His patriotism at this trying period induced Governor Morton to appoint him to fill the vacancy occasioned by the expulsion from the United States Senate of Jesse D. Bright, one of the Senators from Indiana, until the assembling of the Legislature. He entered the Senate under this appointment, March 3, 1862, and served until January 22, 1863, when he was superseded by David Turpie, a Democrat, who was chosen by the anti war Legislature elected in 1862.

The following year Governor Wright attended the Hamburg Exhibition, by appointment of President Lincoln, as Commissioner for the United States, where he interested himself successfully, in introducing American products and inventions to the favorable consideration of the people of Europe.

Shortly after the accession of Mr. Johnson to the Presidency, between whom and Governor Wright there had long existed a close personal friendship, the latter was re-appointed Minister to Prussia, and while serving there as the representative of the United States he was attacked with the disease of which he died, and breathed his last in a foreign land, far from his native country, which he loved with true patriotic devotion.

Before his election as Governor he was united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, and remained a member of that denomination until his death. He was an active and zealous friend of Sunday Schools, did not consider it beneath his dignity to act as a teacher therein while holding the office of Governor, and many men and women now engaged in the active duties of life will remember with pleasure the addresses he delivered to the Sunday Schools of which they were members.

Governor Wright was a man of superior social qualities, of decided executive ability, and energetic in the performance of the duties of the various public positions to which he was elevated. By his death the State has lost a valuable citizen and the country a faithful public servant.—Ind. Journal.

The Mobile Riot.

Judge Kelley, member of Congress from Pennsylvania, arrived in Mobile on the 14th inst., to fill his engagement to speak at night on the political issues of the hour. Preparations were made for him to address the people in the open air at the corner of Government and Royal streets. The meeting was very largely attended by persons of both the prevailing colors, and he had been speaking about a quarter of an hour in a frank and temperate manner, when there appeared to be a disposition on the outskirts of the meeting to create a disturbance. Cries of "Put him down," were heard; to which Mr. Kelly replied, "I tell you that you cannot put me down; the 15th Infantry are at my back, and if I cannot keep the peace in Mobile, the United States Army can." The tumult suddenly broke out at this point by a sudden rush towards the platform. About one hundred people were on the platform, including many citizens, reporters of the press, &c. This rush seemed the signal for the melee to commence. The Chief of Police attempted to arrest a ringleader on the borders of the crowd, and he drew a pistol on him. The cry of fire was then raised at the corner of Royal street, and instantly a perfect fusillade of pistols were opened on the crowd who occupied the platform. A colored man was here shot in the head, and fell. Some friends dragged Judge Kelly from out the range of the fire, and succeeded in getting him away unharmed. The firing by this time was directed right and left among the crowd in the street, who were flying in all directions. There seemed to be no attempt on the part of the police to arrest the violence, or if there was, it was ineffectual, for the rebels had it all their own way. It was evidently a preconcerted affair, and was stimulated by incendiary articles in the rebel press for several days previous. Col. Sheppard, who commanded the military, at once dispatched a body of troops to the Battle House, where Judge Kelley was stopping, and the Colonel took up his quarters there for the night. The whole military force, who were encamped within a mile of the place of meeting, was ordered into the city, and were posted at different points. Several white men, who probably took no part in the attack, were shot in the melee. Mr. Goldsmith was killed. Mr. Sadberry, late Chief of Police, was shot in the forehead. A policeman had a ball thro' his wrist, and quite a number were killed and wounded whose names at present are not known. Judge Kelly declined the invitation to remain and speak again, and left next day for Montgomery.

The Indianapolis Journal, in referring to this affair says:

"Here we have the result of permitting the New Orleans murderers to escape punishment for the atrocities perpetrated in that city on the bloody 30th of June, 1865. Had they been rigorously dealt with and properly punished, it is not probable their example would have been copied in Mobile."

This outcropping of rebellion is a sufficient answer to all attacks upon the military authority established over the rebel States by Congress, and until the South has so far progressed in civilization and obedience to law, that a loyal speech can be delivered anywhere within its limits, without the interference of mobs, the military must be used to suppress disloyalty and to protect the rights and persons of those obnoxious to the hatred of conquered but untamed rebels."

Extracts from the Louisville Courier.

We make the following extracts from the Louisville Courier of the 7th:

"The candidate for a Democratic nomination, provided he is wholly and heartily with us in our war upon those implacable foes of the country, the Radicals, and thoroughly sympathizes with us in our desire to restore the Government to its old constitutional basis, ought not to be asked whether in the late unhappy war he served with the Confederates, or Federals. But let care be taken that such as receive nominations are really and zealously with us! The Democratic party is not a party either of Federals or Confederates; it is the organization of all, without reference to antecedents, who oppose radicalism, and advocate a constitutional government."

"This clamor about 'rebels' ought to be about played out. Sensible people have reached the conclusion that the war ended about two years ago and that those who sustained the Confederate cause are now among the most loyal of the population; that, having failed in their attempt to establish an independent government, their only desire now is to make this one fit to live in. They fought to establish a government more free than this, and they are now struggling to prevent this from being transformed into a despotism."

"Among the other questions settled by the people of Kentucky, last Saturday, at the polls, was that concerning the proscription of men for their antecedents. Hereafter no one is to be banned merely because of his action or sympathy with the Confederate cause during the late calamitous war. Both wings of the opposition insisted upon that test, and the people of the State have entered their protest by an overwhelming majority."

We believe that the Democrats of this State endorse every word of the above.

Ex rebel Mayor Monroe, of New Orleans, is still in Washington, and continues his war upon Generals Sheridan and Grant. His rooms are at the Metropolitan Hotel, which is crowded with men who lionize him, while he utters his vile abuse of those great Union Generals. He says the President will have to remove Sheridan to retain any hold at all upon the Southern men, who expect to make him President again.

"Diamond Cut Diamond."

The last issue of the Press contains an attack on the Mayor and Common Council in regard to the release of the Terre Haute Company from its obligation to repair two feet on either side of the track. To show what the facts are we publish an extract from the proceedings of the Council, containing the memorial and order referred to. The tract reads as follows:

"E. T. Keightley, Superintendent of the Terre Haute Street Railroad, presents a memorial asking to be released, for a present, from improving two feet on each side of said track, and, upon such conditions, proposing to boulder the hole of the inside of said track. On motion, it was ordered that if the company shall, at once, boulder the inside of said track, that they be released, the present, from improving the outside of the same, which order was made on the following vote, to-wit: Ayes, Anderson, Curtis, Hawkins, Puetz and Stevenson. Nays, Ireland."

This shows conclusively that the order is not a final release, but temporary only, and the charge that is otherwise is only another evidence of the unreliability of the Press. Unable to defend its case, it resorts to lies and epithets instead of arguments, and pusillanimously hides itself behind convenient correspondents in the vain hope of escaping the public odium.

INTERNAL REVENUE.—The annual March Assessment of Taxes for the year 1867, including the income tax of 1866, made by the several Assessors of the 7th District of Indiana, will be open for examination at the office of James Farrington in the city of Terre Haute, from the 2nd to the 23rd day of May, 1867. See notice.

NEW PLANNING MILL.—Golding and Ireland are building a large Planning Mill, and expect to have the machinery set up at an early day. It affords us pleasure to notice this evidence of the prosperity of those enterprising gentlemen. Let the manufacturing establishments multiply. They are what Greencastle needs.

The grocery business seems to be flourishing in Greencastle, and T. C. Brooks & Co., determined not to be outdone by any, are adding largely to their already extensive stock. They are prepared to sell both at wholesale and retail, and country dealers would do well to give them a call. They also keep North Carolina Pine Tar, and Condensed Coal Oil. Consult their advertisement.

W. L. Lockhart Esq. made the tour of Morgan and Hendricks Counties last week and reports a good prospect for wheat and fruit. The wheat looks particularly well on rolling land. He also reports a large breadth of corn planted.

ATTENTION, G. A. R.—There will be a special meeting of Post No. 1, Dist. of Putnam, next Saturday evening at 8 o'clock. J. W. Garner, Adj.

CORRECTION.—In our article last week in reference to the Third Ward resolution, the types made us say:

"All those who actively engaged in the late rebellion, and have since remained faithful to the principles that actuated them during that time, have been the objects of the hatred and malice of the Democratic party."

What we wrote, and intended to say, was this—

"All those who actively engaged in the suppression of the late rebellion, and have since remained faithful to the principles that actuated them during that time, have been the objects of the hatred and malice of the Democratic party."

The words "the suppression of" were left out by the compositor, and the paragraph was made to say the reverse of what we intended.

COMING.—Van Amburgh & Co.'s Mammoth Menagerie and Egyptian Caravan, is announced to give an exhibition in this city, on the 31st inst. It is well known to the public that it is unnecessary for us to attempt a description. The student of natural history will be offered an opportunity of studying from nature; those who admire the wonderful will witness surprising feats of skill and daring, and there will be amusement and instruction for all. For further particulars, consult the advertisement in another column.

BASE BALL.—A match game of Base Ball between the first nine of the Washburn club, of Crawfordsville, and the first nine of Asbury, Greencastle, came off at the College Campus in this city on last Saturday. The time occupied was three hours and ten minutes, and the game stood, Washburn 39, Asbury 20. Everything passed off pleasantly, and the contest will probably be renewed hereafter. A large number of citizens were present, many of whom were ladies, and we were pleased to see them giving their encouragement to this athletic exercise. A large delegation was also present from Crawfordsville.

CARRIAGES.—It is no longer necessary to go East to procure handsome turn-outs, as Renick Curtis & Co., of this city, are prepared to furnish everything in that line. They use the best materials and warrant their work for one year. Parties wanting Carriages, Buggies, Spring Wagons, or old vehicles repaired, should call at their Factory, corner Washington and Water Streets. See Advertisement.

Professor Tingley will visit Danville in a short time and give a series of entertainments, consisting of lectures and experiments illustrative of Scientific subjects.

Wool.—We call attention to the advertisement of C. E. Giesendorf & Co., of the Hoosier Woolen Factory, at Indianapolis. They have on hand a large stock of their own make of goods, which they will exchange for Wool on the most liberal terms. They have also a large stock of Broad Yarn to exchange for wool.

The "Hoosier Factory" is the most extensive Woolen establishment in the State, and their make of goods are known to be the most durable of any manufactured in the west. Their custom work, such as Roll Carding, Spinning and Manufacturing gives universal satisfaction. Go there with your wool—You will get good work and good bargains.

MARRIAGE LICENSE.—The following marriage license have been issued since our last publication:

Thos. J. Renfrow and Eliza Johnson.
James Wilson and Susan White.
Thomas J. Newton and Ann E. Kendall.

PREPARE FOR HARVEST.—The late wet weather will prove very beneficial to the wheat, and the probabilities are that our farmers will be gladdened by an abundant yield, and the extravagant price which it demands ought to stimulate them to make every exertion to save it properly. One of the first and most important things to be done is to put all harvesting machinery in good order. Reapers and Threshers should be overhauled now, and such repairs made as they need. Our friends at the Greencastle Foundry and Machine Shop, will do this expeditiously and satisfactorily. They are also prepared to sell No. 1 Treshing Machines. Remember home enterprise.

The Press calls us "Lambtail." We are told that it dubbed our predecessor "Wiggletail." From this it would appear that the editor of the Press runs as naturally to tail as an evil weed does to seed. Each thing after its own kind, is evidently true in his case.

THE STATE FAIR.—The Fair Grounds in which the fifteenth Annual State Fair is to be held, contains fifty acres; twenty five acres of the ground are in a beautiful grove, one and a half miles east of Terre Haute, on the National Road, and only three hundred feet from the Terre Haute and Indianapolis Railroad. The grounds are very beautifully situated and easy of access from all points. The railroad centering at Terre Haute will carry passengers and freight to and from the Fair at half rates. All trains on the Terre Haute and Indianapolis Railroad, from the East, will stop at the grounds to let passengers on or off, and trains from the city will run to and from the Fair Grounds every thirty minutes for the accommodation of all visitors. Large camping grounds will be secured near the Fair Grounds for the accommodation of those who may come in wagons and carriages.

Young Men of Western Indiana.
You can get a more thorough course of Book-keeping at Gundry & Hollingsworth's Greencastle Business College, than at either Chicago or Indianapolis, and at one third less expense. Remember that scholarships sold at Greencastle are good at Gundry's Mercantile College of Cincinnati, the oldest and most thorough in the United States.

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.—This morning (Wednesday) about 8 o'clock, as the freight-train was switching some cars at the Terre Haute Depot, a young man, named Wilson Pennington, was run over and severely injured. He lives at Coatsville, and had come down on the morning train to his work, but before getting off the train was asked to let off two of the brakes. In attempting to do so, he fell between the cars, and two of them passed over him. His left leg is badly crushed, and it is thought will have to be amputated at the knee. The right leg is also badly hurt, but the Surgeons will probably be able to save it. Drs. Ellis & Smythe are attending him, and will give every assistance possible. Mr. Pennington is about 23 years old, and unmarried.

VALUABLE ADVICE FOR THE AFFLICTED.—Dr. Strickland, in reply to numerous applications for advice, wishes to inform those who are afflicted, that they may consult him on all Acute or Chronic Diseases by letter, stating the age, symptoms, &c., with a fee of two dollars enclosed. Dr. S. has obtained great notoriety as an experienced Physician, both in Europe and America, especially in the treatment of Chronic Complaints, after other doctors have failed to effect a cure. Those suffering should immediately send for a prescription, by addressing Dr. A. Strickland, Cincinnati, Ohio.
